Dear Friends,

After spending two years in isolation, I am truly grateful for our in-person time together. This year felt like we were finally able to come together in community in classrooms, strategy sessions, and celebrations. My favorite moments were attending our Fellows' graduations, which are far more fun in caps and gowns in auditoriums than on Zoom.

The most memorable graduation for me was at OneGoal partner school Solorio Academy. Each student I met had defined their postsecondary path. Just one semester later, Jeremy Hall thrives at Morehouse College in Atlanta. Nathalia Deaton is studying nursing at Lewis University. David Resendez is pursuing his dream of becoming a film director at Columbia College Chicago. Aspiring teachers Nathaly Figueroa and Itzel Lopez enrolled at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. All 26 Fellows of OneGoal Program Director Laura Dignani's Class of '22 are persisting in their postsecondary journeys. All 26!

This phenomenal outcome is a beacon of light in a dark moment for young people all across our country. The inequities that existed before the pandemic were exacerbated by harsh economic times, poor medical care, and a lack of resources. Today, less than 50% of students from low-income communities are pursuing any postsecondary education. This stark reality means we must work to be better and bolder in how we show up for our students.

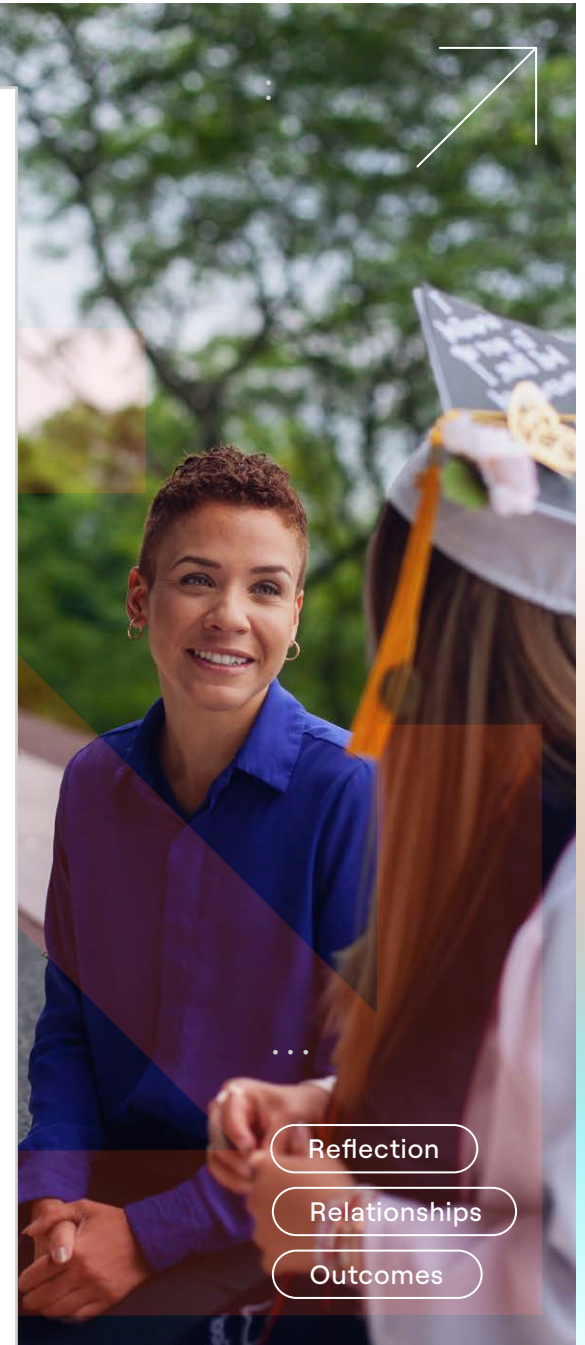

While the success of Ms. Dignani's Class of '22 is a bright spot, it is not a mystery. Behind their success is the playbook OneGoal uses to inform our strategy—one that our entire secondary sector could be using to reverse some of these concerning educational trends. Positive academic outcomes are predictable results of genuine relationships between teachers and students, a well-designed curriculum, and a collective effort by decision-makers to implement student-centered, research-based advising and support practices.

This report outlines our vision for strengthening our impact, scaling our reach, investing in long-term sustainability, and partnering with supporters who are ready to champion this work. Together, we can lead the movement to transform postsecondary advising and support.

With gratitude and in solidarity,

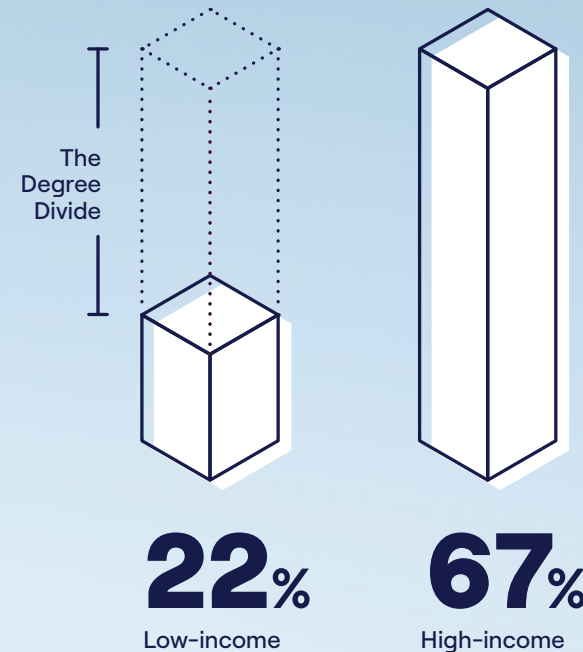

Melissa Connelly
Chief Executive Officer

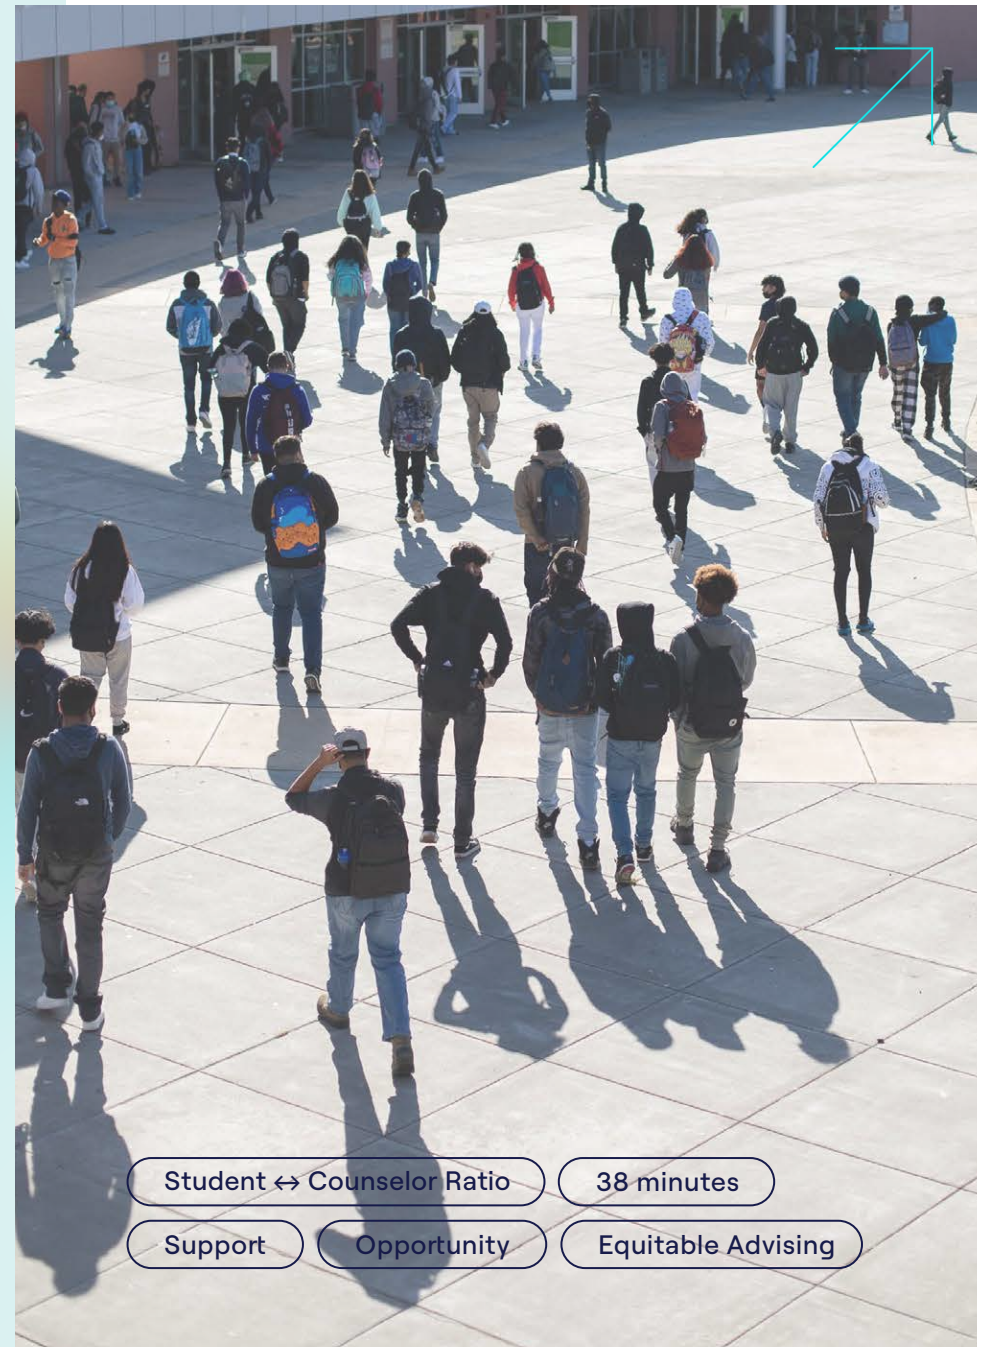

A postsecondary education unlocks life opportunities and economic mobility not only for students, but entire communities. Yet for millions of underserved students, it remains out of reach.

Only 22% of students from low-income communities earn a postsecondary degree (bachelor's and/or associate's), compared to 67% of their peers from high-income areas.*

While students of all backgrounds have similar college and career aspirations, those born in low-income communities are far less likely to earn a degree. It's not for lack of ambition or talent, but for lack of opportunity and support. High schools need expertise and capacity to offer robust, equitable support to all students as they transition to their postsecondary paths.

OneGoal Year Three Fellow Jeremy Hall is having a pretty great first semester at Morehouse College in Atlanta. "It's looking like all A's and one B, but that one's an 89.9% and I still have the final exam, so I'm optimistic that I can bump that one up," said Jeremy. Despite the rigorous course load as a Biology major, Jeremy has carried the focus and determination he was known for as a student at Solorio Academy High School in Chicago on his postsecondary journey.

"I could talk about Jeremy all day," said OneGoal Program Director Laura Dignani. "He is such an awesome kid, and I never doubted he would thrive at Morehouse," she said. In Laura's first year leading a OneGoal cohort at Solorio, 25 of the 26 Fellows, including Jeremy, enrolled in a 2- or 4-year postsecondary pathway, with the 26th student choosing a job training program.

Morehouse is a men's college and one of the top-ranked Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) in the nation, producing Rhodes Scholars, Nobel Prize winners, and notable alums from Martin Luther King Jr. to Senator Raphael Warnock. When Jeremy was deciding where to attend, his sights were not set as high as Morehouse, "but [Ms. Dignani] would push me and use me as an example with my peers, like 'learn from how Jeremy is doing this,' and I wasn't used to being noticed in that way, I was a huge introvert," said Jeremy. "That really gave me this sense that I was a leader and gave me a respect for myself that I didn't have before."

With one semester down, Jeremy is certain he made the right decision, "even though it's 10 hours from home in a new city, I've made so many connections, been awarded internships, and I'm just taking full advantage of every single opportunity that comes my way."

Jeremy says OneGoal has impacted how he thinks about his future by "expanding my perspective about possible career paths. I want to become an Endocrinologist and positively impact society through medicine."

Together, we can transform postsecondary advising and support to close the opportunity gap
once and for all.

2025 Strategic Plan

Our proven classroom model continues to have the deepest impact on students, but closing opportunity gaps in college and career success will take further innovation. OneGoal is partnering with leaders at the district and state level to reimagine postsecondary advising and support so that all students – not just a select few – have access to the equitable and robust support we know is required to achieve their postsecondary dreams.

By 2025, OneGoal will serve 30,000 Fellows through our classroom model and impact another 150,000 students through our Postsecondary Leadership Network. Furthermore, our Fellows will be positioned to earn their degrees at two times the rate of peers with similar backgrounds.

Impact

Aim 1

More Fellows Graduating

We continue to strengthen our impact by helping more students make high-quality enrollment decisions and ensuring they receive support to succeed in their chosen postsecondary pathways. We are broadening our impact through the development of additional advising solutions and expanding career pathways.

Reach

Aim 2

System-Level Change

We equip secondary systems with the tools needed to ensure more equitable advising and support for all students. We partner with district and state leaders to assess their current postsecondary readiness and support them in building the capacity and infrastructure necessary to transform postsecondary advising support in their schools.

Strength + Stability

Aim 3

A Thriving Organization

We invest in the infrastructure needed to achieve our bold organizational goals. We utilize technology to strengthen our programs and partnerships, steward our funds responsibly, engage in long-term planning, and evolve our business operations in alignment with our commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Fundraising

Aim 4

Fueling the Movement

We launched a $105 million org-wide, multi-year fundraising campaign in support of our 2025 Strategic Plan. By the end of FY22, we had surpassed the half-way mark of this ambitious campaign, including an unprecedented leadership gift from MacKenzie Scott.

Aim 1

More Fellows Graduating

Quality Enrollment

Pathways

Persistence

There are thousands of institutions students can explore when choosing their postsecondary paths. A good fit for one student may not be right for another. Our research shows that when Fellows make high-quality enrollment decisions, they are far more likely to persist and earn their degrees. Our new Quality Enrollment Framework helps students narrow down their options into “best fit” lists based on considerations like graduation rates for students of color, financial aid, academic supports, and connection with their personal values. In addition to leveraging the framework to impact persistence and completion, we have continued to strengthen our postsecondary success advising for Fellows through collaborations with organizations like Beyond 12 and the addition of both regional and national success coaches for Fellows needing the most support.

Partnership

Equitable Outcomes

Postsecondary success is a system-level challenge. In 2021, OneGoal and the Illinois State Board of Education (ISBE) launched a new partnership to bring OneGoal's Postsecondary Leadership Network (PLN) to districts across the state. The collaboration helps district leaders build skills and knowledge to improve the quality and quantity of support that students receive.

"Partnering with OneGoal is a critical step to close opportunity gaps and equitably support college and career success for all our students across the state. This new collaboration directly supports ISBE's core principles – equity, quality, collaboration, and community – and our responsibility to pursue educational equity for all of our students in all of our classrooms, schools, and districts."

Salesforce has supported OneGoal's nationwide work since 2018. With a mission to help young people reach their full potential, they recently invested in the transition of our core program model to a virtual platform. This multi-year project began in 2021 and allowed OneGoal to redesign our postsecondary advising experience for students and teachers.

As postsecondary enrollment and persistence have fallen significantly across the country due to the global pandemic, Salesforce remains a critical partner for OneGoal in responding to this crisis and reimagining our work to better support students through this challenging period.

This partnership is an exemplar of our belief that

At Salesforce, we believe that everyone deserves access to a high-quality education—that’s why we are proud to have supported OneGoal since 2018. In these turbulent times for students, OneGoal provides real-time support to first-generation students through trusted relationships, so that students can reach their higher education goals. Our recent partnership focuses on new, low-cost tools students can access anywhere, at any time, and providing peer mentors for students during their first year in postsecondary.

These investments
