Why We Are Here

A postsecondary education – college, trade school, and other pathways – unlocks opportunities for students and entire communities. Yet for millions of underserved students, it remains out of reach. While the Bay Area is known for lucrative innovation, that wealth and opportunity has not reached many of its residents. In the nine-county Bay Area, only 38% of Black and 27% of Latinx adults have attained an associates degree or higher, compared to 71% of their white peers*. This is not for lack of ambition or talent, but for lack of support.
